

3 steps nearer to original ideas

Unknown words: crap, goof off, diligent, toil,

The author in this conference showed his results about a study he performed, about original people. In his study he find out three main facts about original people: is normal people who procrastinate after having an assigned task -while they are procrastinating they will probably come up with a great idea to solve or answer their task- but they won't spend as much time as procrastinators, is people that are not the first creating ideas but they are good enough to improve and make others ideas even better ("you have to be different and better"), and originals are people with good ideas and with tons of bad ideas.

Well, I feel that the arguments presented by the author could be true, because they are based in some experiments he performed and he also is basing his arguments in historical facts -like the Edison's doll. Summarising all you must do to improve your creative ideas in order to become original is to procrastinate -this will let your subconscious to work on the problem and bring you some creative ideas, (no more than 5 minutes procrastinating)-, improve ideas make other ideas even better and don't let your doubts or fears go.

References

Grand, Adam. The surprising habits of original thinkers. Ted talks. Available at:
https://www.ted.com/playlists/462/talks_for_procrastinators